December marks a season of gratitude and giving! This year I am honored to participate in Georgia Justice Project’s Lawyer to Lawyer Campaign. As firm captain, I am enlisting the support of my colleagues to join me and make a meaningful contribution towards the campaign.

For over 33 years, Georgia Justice Project (GJP) has been instrumental in strengthening the community by providing holistic legal representation for the underserved and advocating to change policies that keep people of color, particularly black men, from successfully re-entering society after time served. GJP has been on the forefront of leading innovative criminal justice reform and stands at a pivotal point in its history. The organization stands ready to tackle more barriers, laws and other obstacles preventing these citizens from reclaiming their lives, getting back to work and providing for their families.

Georgia’s legal community has been a partner in GJP’s work for decades. Perhaps, you have offered your legal expertise on one of their cases, shared your time as a volunteer attorney or attended one of their CLE classes. The organization is dependent on private dollars to fund its annual operating budget. Your support would be instrumental as they work to meet the $60,000 campaign goal for this fundraising effort.

Today, the organization is charting the way forward for citizens entrapped by the endless cycle of justice involvement after incarceration. GJP offers pro-bono, fervent criminal defense for the neediest among us. So, how can you help?

You can join me by sharing the GJP story and supporting the campaign. Together, we can make a difference in the lives of those seeking a chance to get back on their feet. GJP sees first-hand the collateral consequences of a client’s criminal history and the resulting blockades to finding a job, a place to live and even obtaining a driver’s license. Please join me to make an impact!

Below is a guide on Ways to Give towards GJP:
Support via a check made payable to Georgia Justice Project and return it to me. I will be collecting the checks from the firm by December XX and mailing them to GJP.

Deduct against your firm account by using the following link. INSERT LINK HERE.

Make an online donation. Go to: www.gjp.org/ways-to-support/donations
Be sure to enter our law firm so our name is recognized.

Remember that all donations are tax-deductible. Georgia Justice Project addresses the very complex issue of criminal justice reform and is so worthy of our support. I would deeply appreciate your participation in the campaign.

With gratitude,

NAME
Firm Captain

Attachments

- GJP Annual Report
- List of last year’s donors to Lawyer to Lawyer Campaign

And check out a special video message from GJP’s executive director, Doug Ammar! Go to: YOUTUBE